EDUCATION: The current class of the Marine Technical Specialist Program will soon be looking to perform their 80-hour internship requirement. Each student must spend ten 8-hour days working at a marina, boatyard or repair shop to fulfill their course requirements. If you will be looking for spring help, this internship program may be for you. If you have not signed up to be an internship provider, you can do so by contacting Conrad at 516-449-7076. Each student will work for you without pay. Western Suffolk BOCES pays the workers compensation for their intern student. All we ask you to do is to give the student a meaningful job within their skill level for the required time. The days and hours should be as flexible as possible to accommodate your needs and the student's schedule. We have up to 10 students looking for opportunities. Conrad Kreuter
